CHARGES HARDING'S BROTHER-IN-LAW HALTED JAIL DOPE PROBE

than" were named by the witness as being the names of the inmates of the Atlanta Prison, had said of the latest dope probe there, W. J. Burns, head of the Secret Service, was acquainted with the records in the case.

Asked about the Atlanta dope investigation, Burns said he believed the investigation would have resulted "in some manner" if it had been allowed to go on. He said it was "inconceivable" that an "illegal" thing was being done from the country.

The staff of the National National Bank at Washington, D. C., Ohio, of which Maj. S. Daugherty, the former Attorney General's brother, were discussed at an executive session, and it was decided that the committee should go to Ohio to enforce its demand to inspect the books of the institution.

Behind closed doors, the committee also looked over air service records submitted by Secretary Weeks. The latter will later appear in person before the committee. The records examined today were those taken from Captain Lane, ex-advisee of the committee, who was removed because of his interest in the Daugherty investigation.

The questioning of Daugherty marked a departure of the investigation in an entirely new field.

VOTAW BLOCKED PROBE:

The witness said there were 250 copies of the narcotic law in the prison when he went there. Daugherty came into the prison in various ways, he said, and many convicts became addicts after their conviction. There was evidence that some of the guards took in the narcotic, he said.

He said something, he declared, W. J. Burns finally sent three "blue cover" men. Four others came finally were indicted, but none of them were indicted.

Votaw came down when the guards were indicted, and insisted to the fact that the investigation case "out of the four men tried, Daugherty said "I had to assign any reason."

"Unfortunately, the matter insisted on getting into the papers. His objection seemed to be the authority. He gave another reason, that it would disfigure the prison, but there was nothing to that."

"And the traffic was still going on."

"It was brought out that an inspector of persons went to Atlanta to 'interview' to Daugherty that 'traffing matter whom it involved."

"Did the evidence point to somebody else having got it?" asked Senator James Borah, of Washington.

"You mean as to the subject?" Daugherty asked. "I remember that I told to Burns that was very serious, but that 'he already knew it.'"

"And that's where they stopped?" Senator Wheeler put in.

"Yes."

BURNS FOUGHT TRAFFIC.

Senator Wheeler had the committee clerk telephone Burns' office for records of the investigation at the Atlanta penitentiary. Daugherty insisted that Burns himself had done everything in his power to stop the traffic.

The witness said Daugherty called him to Washington for a conference on the situation and that Votaw was present and "talked some" about the matter.

Daugherty said he was summoned to Washington again by Daugherty regarding "lack of harmony" between himself and Deputy Warden Fletcher. Fletcher, he added, "had the ear of Votaw and I didn't."

Then, he said, Prison Inspector McAdams was sent to Atlanta to "feel me out" as to resigning.

"I told him he could have my resignation just as quick as he wanted it," the witness said.

Senator Wheeler turned the inquiry to public access. The witness told of having attended a parole board meeting with Votaw present, after which it was "passionately" that a parole was granted to a man, a drug case convict, through use of money. "Trustee" told him of this talk, he said, mentioning first $5,000, then $2,500, as the amount he had paid.

Smith, the colored butler formerly employed by Howard Manningham of the "little green house" of K Street, followed Daugherty on the stand. He told of having seen Daugherty at the K Street house to call on Manningham.

Smith said he had also been in Harry P. Sinclair, Will Orr and others. There was liquor at the house, he said, but he could not say that Orr brought any of it.

Twenty-five shipments of liquor were received by express at the K Street house, Smith said, "with a reverse man in the wagon."

Smith named Jess W. Smith and "Mr. Christian" as among other even house visitors. He said that liquor came in broad daylight and he had taken bottles of liquor to a room in the New Marlborough hotel times in instructions of Manningham.

In forwarding the Lane papers to the committee, Secretary Weeks sent this letter to Chairman Brookhart:

"My dear Senator:

"I have received your letter of April 2, requesting that I send certain official records described in a memorandum accompanying your letter, and an acknowledgment of the same by Captain W. F. Volant, assistant chief, finance section, service, who is familiar with these records and can assist you in referring to their contents."

"I hardly need suggest that, inasmuch as these are important public records, it is most desirable that they be carefully preserved, and that they will be taken from this department for as short a time as possible."

"These papers, relating largely to matters now in course of litigation or about to be litigated, and there is much in them which if disclosed or made known to the defendants in the suits brought and to be brought by the United States would result in great injury to the public interest. I have therefore to request that you conduct your examination of these papers in such a way as will not reveal their contents to the public at large at present."

INVOLVES $12,000,000.

"As indicating the importance of this matter, these papers are involved in suits now brought or about to be brought in thirty different cases involving an amount of about $12,000,000. I may say, however, that there is no need whatever of recovery in the case of the memorandum of May 24, 1921, signed by Maj. General Charles T. Monahan, chief of air service, addressed to the Secretary of War, setting up the means why settlements of certain war contracts in the air service ought to be investigated and re-audited and the exhibits thereto."

my wanted him to get out."

The witness said the Attorney General was "in a jam," Daugherty said, and he resigned.

The witness said he had reported the drug traffic conditions personally to Attorney General Daugherty, but that "he already knew it."

OBJECTED TO "PUBLICITY"

The thing that seemed to be bothering the Attorney General was the fact of the publicity, Daugherty said. "He objected to the publicity."

Half the guards at Atlanta, he said, were opposed to the investigation into drug smuggling. The witness said in his opinion there should have been eight or ten indictments and when "Mr. Votaw" did not look the position he had taken was perfectly satisfied.

"It is a matter of the Gospel and bottomless love of the dead President," said Daugherty, "I couldn't see why the investigation shouldn't go on."

HELPED STOP PANIC AMONG CHILDREN

ELLA HILTON (AT TOP) AND MARY BARTON

FIRE PANIC IS PREVENTED BY OFFICIALS

Court Clerk Simmons and Librarian Edith Templeton Warn Children

Two officials of the Field's Corner branch of the Public Library, who showed great cool headedness in preventing panic when fire broke out in police station 11, next door.

Mothers and fathers of scores of Dorchester children are loud in their praise of Frederick E. Simmons, assistant clerk of the Dorchester Municipal Court, and Librarian Edith P. Templeton and her assistants in the Public Corner branch of the Public Library, for their cool-headedness in preventing a panic when fire broke out in Police Station 11, next door.

In a library room on the third floor of the building, at Arcadia and Adams street, upstairs over the rooms of the Court, Mrs. Mary Powers was telling stories to 125 children when a strong odor of smoke became noticeable.

The little ones already were showing signs of restlessness when Clerk Simmons came up from the Court rooms to advise Mrs. Powers that it might be well to get them out.

They filed out in good order, but when they reached the stairway some of the older ones, not so much afraid as eager not to miss anything, ran pell mell down to the next landing.

The police station fire was caused to the locker room, Captain Matthew F. Daley estimated the loss at not more than $250.

MAN KILLED, ANOTHER HURT IN TRUCK CRASH

The occupant of a truck was killed and the driver seriously injured when the machine left the road at a bend curve on Union street, East Braintree, plunged over an embankment and burst into flames, with both men pinned beneath it.

Vincent Club Show at Opera House Is Big Success, Says Betty Alden

By BETTY ALDEN.

IT was a packed audience of proud Mammas, bewitching little sisters, as well as grand old, if very youthful aunts and daughters—with here and there a scattering of mere man—who watched the opening performance of "Wake Up" at the Boston Opera House yesterday afternoon.

At tonight's performance and tomorrow's matinee and evening presentation, there will be a large male representation to see this year's offering of the fair Vincents.

"Wake Up" fairly starts with snappy features. There is something for everyone. For those who like the graceful dances of grandmother's day there is the exquisite gavotte danced by Mrs. Monroe Douglas Robinson, formerly J. J. Robinson, who came on from New York to take part in the show.

Another beautifully done number is the Dresden Shepherdess dance, with thirty Miss Barrows, Forbes and Mrs. John E. Bott, the girls, and Miss Martha Egleston and Margery Richardson, their partners.

For those who like their torches distinctly modern there is a jazz number called "The Strut." In this "high speed" group are Mrs. Marland Hobbs, Mrs. Sherman Thorndike, Mrs. Dudley Langford and the Mousie Girls Sargent, Prescilla, Rhonda, Ruth Bremer, Eleanor Winslow and Anna Winslow.

SPEAKING of Anna Winslow, this very versatile young woman deserves a separate word of praise.

Beside taking the part of the "rough" stage manager in the play, Miss Winslow—she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Winslow—and being one of the "sartettes" mentioned above, "Palms and Pines" and taking part in the eye-catching "Fashion Show," Miss Winslow and pretty Mrs. John E. Thayer, Jr., sing a funny song called "Fashion, Fashion."

They are dressed as male designers (Mrs. Thayer wears a moustache), and create quite a sensation when they appear for the encore with their coats off, revealing dancing costume waistcoats and tiny tails ballet skirts around their waists.

THEIR "Fashion, Fashion" now plays the part of the "rough" stage manager in the play, Miss Winslow—she is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. George S. Winslow—and being one of the "sartettes" mentioned above, "Palms and Pines" and taking part in the eye-catching "Fashion Show," Miss Winslow and pretty Mrs. John E. Thayer, Jr., sing a funny song called "Fashion, Fashion."

Others appearing in the parade include Mrs. Arthur Richardson, who wore an elaborate black and white costume, and Mrs. Thomas E. P. Rice (Elizabeth Rice), who wore an elaborate black and white costume.

SILK ALPACAS WILCOX SUITS LATEST CLEARED IN R. DIVORCE

Black and White Girdles and Boyish Pajama Coats Also Are the Rage

By CORINNE RICH

New York, April 4 (Universal)—You simply can't "own" Spring "Tuesday" frock show made by the suits, caught out without an overcoat, look like poor little shivering violets. But today, three days after, only small patches of the heavy fall clinging to each corner and the suit cluster fifth avenue as jingling car pet the countryside.

Among those suits are the silk alpaca in dark blue, all shades of tan, green and black. With them are gay scarfs or animal neckties in sable, marten, fisher and fox. Fox is colored to harmonize with the suit.

No more flesh-colored girdles for those who wear them. The class of hip-confair must these days be stylish—fashioned by brocade panels finely checked in black and white. Flowers for piping and hems for Velt outfit ornaments.

Most of the dresses show some variety of the old-time habit. A lady frill, so becoming to all women, emanates from a bodice of fine metal embroidery, on a certain black satin gown.

In her bodice military can easily imagine herself the Empress Josephine. If she puts on one of the new direction negligees—big waistline, short skirt and slightly puffed sleeves, and a V-shaped neck opening. If it is in one of the delicate flower colors, so much the better.

To look at the new pajama coats, you would never think they belonged to trousers. Except for the fact that they have no sleeves, they are much like the overalls worn by the boyish suits, round collars and all. In fact, the pajamas are very, very stylish.

Speaking of trousers, the new "looked out" that the girls this summer are to wear—pajama trousers. A fashion expert claims that the Manhattan costume is easily adaptable to formal charms and should become a popular street outfit. At any rate, the fashion chorus has been equipped with a brand new set of them.

Grand Jury Decides to Bring No Indictment Against the Author; Warns Lawyers

Providence, April 4.—Although her decree of divorce was vacated by Judge Chester W. Barrows, Mrs. Nina Wilcox Putnam Standerson, the author, will not be prosecuted for presenting false affidavits in connection therewith. The grand jury which investigated her case filed a special report today, in which it stated that no indictment had been found.

The case of Fay Elsenberg, wife of a former New York corporation counsel, was also considered, but no indictment returned.

In its report the grand jury says the evidence was undoubtedly presented in those and many other cases heard on depositions, but that it believed misconception of the law's requirements may have been responsible.

It recommends that witnesses and lawyers connected with such cases in the future be prosecuted.

CORLISS PALMER SELLS LOVE NEST FITTINGS

OLD THINGS YIELD TO BEAUTY

Wonderful to Get Rid of Them, She Says, Stripping Brewster's "Cherrycroft"

New York, April 4.—"Cherrycroft," the home of Eugene V. Brewster and Corliss Palmer—the house that love sought—at Marjorie, N. J., is to be completely refurnished. The beautiful Miss Palmer will superintend the refurnishing in every detail. To be at South Fork, N. J., in the old farmhouse, she is selling the old furniture of this $250,000 mansion under the auctioneer's hammer. Incidentally, Miss Palmer will sell some of her personal effects, food and jewelry.

"It is wonderful to get rid of old things," said Miss Palmer. "They catch dust and don't fit into new schemes of decorum," she continued.

That, apparently, has been the theory of Eugene V. Brewster, who is verging on fifty. Miss Palmer is his wife, as well as the current love of his heart.

Brewster has already rid himself of two wives. The second one won't give him a divorce—but they are separated.

"We will marry if it takes a hundred years," Corliss and Brewster once declared in the days when they were young to get Mrs. Eugene V. Brewster No. 2 to agree to a divorce.

He has practically retired from business, the publication of magazines, to devote his time to the education of his perfect love. Her admittance that she goes to the office but once a week now to sign checks. He spends all the rest of the time with Corliss Palmer, who says:

"It is wonderful to get rid of old things."

MILLIS REFUSED AID OF STATE POLICE

Town Will Not Vote Funds for Its Own Protection; Seeks Constabulary

Following the action of the residents of Millis in refusing to vote funds for police protection for the town, State officials have refused to permit the State constabulary to take over the police duties of the town.

Captain Thomas Bligh of the State Police informed a committee of Millis residents that State troopers would act in case of an emergency, but that his men would not perform the ordinary police duties of the town.

Some weeks ago a Millis town meeting voted $200 for police protection. This money was expended in a few weeks. Later, a project to raise several thousand dollars for police protection was voted and the town is without police protection of any kind. A town constable who is engaged in having a dog enterprise is the only peace officer in the community.

The Millis residents informed Captain Bligh that in former years four shoe factory workers were employed in the late afternoon and evenings as traffic officers.

TRAFFIC DUTY.

It was the duties these men performed, along with other general police work, that the selectmen wanted the State to take over.

Captain Bligh, in refusing the request, announced that there is a growing tendency on the part of a number of the small towns to save money by refusing to provide their own police protection, expecting the State to do the work.

The Millis residents were told to confer with their town counsel and to read their town charter to learn if it would not be possible to call on other towns to have funds voted to provide protection.

Marion Davies Named Queen of Beauty by 400,000 Women

New York, April 4 (INS).—The New York Federation of Women's Clubs, composed of 350 clubs and 400,000 members, has chosen Marion Davies Queen of Beauty.

Miss Davies will be crowned as Queen of Beauty Monday night at a banquet to be given by the 350 clubs which compose the New York Federation of Women's Clubs. The purpose of the banquet is to raise funds for a working girls' hotel.

The crown, which is being made especially for the event by a Fifth Avenue jeweler, is studded with diamonds and pearls.

CERTIFICATE IS GUARANTEE OF CAR'S WORTH

Inspection-Insurance Plan Boom to Purchasers of Used Autos

What would you do if you wanted to buy a used car and didn't know anything about cars? The chances are you'd have a friend, who did know cars go along with you.

But what would you do if you didn't have a friend who knew cars? There's the rub.

The Boston American "Inspected-Insured" used car service has been established to relieve prospective used car buyers of just such quandaries. The Boston American has made of itself an auto mechanic at the service of its readers. And the plan is growing in favor, day by day.

Paid mechanics are supplied by the Boston American to inspect used cars, offered for sale by consumers. These mechanics know their business. They know cars.

Under the used car go these mechanics. They inspect the mechanical condition painstakingly. On a blue "Inspected-Insured" certificate, they note their findings. If the car is in certain points, they say so. If it is good, they say so.

This certificate is then passed on to the prospective buyer's guide. In a glance he can tell if the condition of the car is such that he wants to buy it.

Under the Boston American plan, the car is also insured for a limited time against fire and theft.

STUDENTS MAUL 6 POLICEMEN IN BATTLE

U. of P. Boys Start Riot at Philadelphia Hotel; Four Arrested

Philadelphia, April 4 (INS).—Six policemen were injured, scores of students are leaving bruised and four of the latter are under arrest today as the outcome of a free-fight fight between freshmen and sophomore of the University of Pennsylvania which police endeavored to stop.

The student battle started when a bunch of "freshies" marched to the Hotel Majestic to break up a sophomore banquet. The street in front of the hotel became a mass of milling students and a riot call was sent into police headquarters. One hundred policemen responded and started to break up the melee.

Guards interference was resented by the students and they forgot their own affair to deal with the police.

BODY OF SUICIDE IN WOODS AT BRAINTREE

Boy Scouts Find Remains of John Abbott With Bullet Hole in Head

Boy Scouts, searching for John Abbott, nine years old, who disappeared from his brother's home in Braintree, discovered the body today in the woods of Braintree Highlands. There was a bullet hole in the man's head and a revolver at his side gave more evidence of love he ended his life.

Abbott came to Braintree last September from Colorado, and made his home with his brother, G. G. Abbott, of No. 12 River street, Braintree. Recently he complained to his brother that he was tired of living and that he contemplated suicide.

When the man disappeared and a revolver was missed from the Abbott home a search of the countryside was started. John Cummins and

Banker Admits He's Thief, but He Can't Prove It to Police

Wichita, Kas., April 4.—The case of a banker, who wishes to be arrested for a shortage in his accounts, but who cannot be arrested, because no one can prove the crime was committed, is presented by L. P. Weaver, former cashier of the First National Bank at Lewis.

A month ago Weaver confessed to a $12,000 shortage.

After his confession bank examiners closed the bank and went over the books. A few days later the bank was reopened as usual.

Robert Astorson came across the body lying in a thicket in the Highlands woods.

POLICEMAN SUSPENDED AND BEATEN

Four East Boston Men Are in Court as the Result of Day Square Row

An intoxicating charge, an altercation in Day square, East Boston, an alleged assault by the officer on a woman and a beating, add to have been given him by four men, figure in the suspension of Patrolman George H. Day of the East Boston station, revealed today in court.

The fact that Patrolman Day has been suspended and will be arraigned before a trial board next Tuesday was brought out when the four men were in court, charged with beating him. The cases were continued until next Friday.

The policeman, according to testimony, was engaged in an altercation last Saturday night in Day square with a group of young men.

Mrs. Mary Mulligan, fifty-five, of No. 297 Princeton street, mother of several children, was told that one of her boys was in the group. She went to the square to take him home.

She alleges that when she reached the square, Patrolman Day pushed her to the ground, injuring her.

A sergeant was sent to Day square and the policeman was brought back to the station, where an intoxication charge was preferred against him and he was suspended.

On the next day, according to the court story, Day, who lives at No. 44 Monument avenue, Charlestown, went back to the scene of the conflict in civilian clothes. In the drug store of Clark & Mahoney at Everett and Bennington streets, it is alleged that "Nitz" Seale, a honor, of No. 209 Princeton street, East Boston; Edward Skane of No. 311 Bennington street, Walter J. Greiner of No. 308 Bennington street, and Martin J. Connolly of No. 246 Chelsea street, administered a severe beating to the policeman.

Greenwich, Ct., April 4.—The will of Alfred B. Forbes of Old Church road has been admitted to probate by Judge Hartford M. Forbes, chairman of the directors of the large Forbes & Co. for the bulk of his estate, estimated at $4,721,813, to his family.

Among the bequests was $10,000 to the Greenwich Hospital, $5,000 to Yale University and various legacies to relatives. The bulk of the estate goes to the wife and sons, Craig G. and Gordon C. Forbes.

GOVERNOR'S NEPHEW STARTS FIRE IN HOME

Lawrence, April 4.—Called by a bell alarm to the home of Judge Louis B. Cox, brother of the Governor, on Lowell street, the fire department found a waste paper basket ablaze. A hand chemical made short work of the blazing fire. Investigation revealed that the judge's son, Randall T. Cox, had thrown a lighted match into the basket after lighting a cigarette.

William M. Butler, director of the Coolidge campaign, told the president today that he has a total of 385 delegates, thus he pledged of instructed for him, and that in the 224 this total would be increased to 620 delegates, or 65 more than the necessary majority of 565.

RICH BOY OF 15 IS KILLED IN MOCK DUEL

Two "Draw and Fire!" at Play, but One Weapon
Is Loaded

Summit, N. J., April 4.—Two boys, sons of wealthy New York and Summit families, stood on opposite sides of a bed in a mock cowboy duel with revolvers and at the word "draw," fired at each other.

Unknown to them, one of the guns was loaded and Noel Danforth, fifteen, was shot through the right breast by his playmate, Andrew G. McGrath, fourteen.

He ran from the room, screaming "I'm shot," and died before an ambulance arrived.

The cowboy game took place in the home of Joseph Walker McGrath, New York lawyer, where the dead boy had come to spend the day. Young Danforth was the son of George H. Danforth of the American Bank Note Company, New York, who died a year ago.

Mrs. Danforth is traveling in Europe.

NO. END BABIES EAGER TO GO TO CLINIC

Ideal Conditions in Community Health Rooms in Parmenter Street

This is the thirty-fifth of a series of articles which is a sequel to the newspaper's investigation of medical quackery in Greater Boston.

If you are not acquainted with reputable physicians and wish to make sure of obtaining expert advice and fair dealing, the series will show you how to avoid quackery by patronizing Boston's health centers, the best in the country.

No dismal place in the Community Health Association Well Baby and Child Clinic of the North End at No. 21 Parmenter street. Babies who come here with their mothers from week to week romp around in a spacious, well lighted room while awaiting their turn, and seem to regard the place as a second home.

They are sure of first-class treatment, too. No quack would be countenanced at this health station. Dr. Charles Rice and Dr. A. B. Lyon are in charge and the babies who attend these conferences are a tribute to their medical skill.

WEIGHED WEEKLY.
The procedure here is practically the same as that which prevails at all the baby clinics controlled by the Community Health Association. The children are first weighed, given a physical examination, and then a feeding formula prescribed. Clinics are from 9 to 4:30 P. M. Tuesdays and Thursdays.

The mother is then instructed to bring the baby each week to be weighed and examined, so that, if the child does not show a gain, the doctor may know just what is the matter, and recommend it to a private physician or hospital, as no prescriptions for medicine are written here.

POSTURE CLINICS.
There is also a Posture Clinic held on Wednesdays and Fridays at 2 for children from five to fourteen years old. At this clinic the children are taught to breathe, walk and sit correctly, and a nutrition expert prescribes certain diets.

Special clinics for mothers are held Tuesdays between 9 and 10 A. M. at this address under the auspices of the Boston Lying-In Hospital, which institution works in affiliation with the nurses of the Community Health Association.

Miss Agnes V. Murphy, R. N., is the superintendent.

GIRL TWINS IN WEEKLY HEALTH CONTEST

AT COMMUNITY HEALTH CLINIC

Miss Agnes V. Murphy, superintendent of the Well Baby Clinic of the Community Health Association in Parmenter street, North End, is preparing to decide which of these twins is the week's winner in their unique weight contest. The twins are Katherine and Terence Madart, ten months old, and since they have been three weeks old they have been examined weekly at the clinic. The whole clinic as well as the mother is interested in which gains the most weight during the week.

Parish-Lieutenant Osborne Wood, who was recently in the limelight as a result of his profits in stock speculations, arrived today on his way to the United States.

WIFE OF 33 IS SHOT DOWN BY BOARDER

Wife of Rich Contractor May Die; Assaultant Blows Out Brains

New Brunswick, N. J., April 4 (National)—Mrs. Florence Christensen, thirty-three years old, wife of Christian Christensen, member of the Board of Education of Rutland Township, and wealthy contractor, was shot and perhaps fatally wounded in the living room of her home on Vineyard road by Frederick Gould, a boarder.

The latter then turned his revolver on himself and blew out his brains. The woman is in St. Peter's General Hospital, with a bullet wound through her head, from her right cheek to the left temple. She is expected to die.

A temporary aberration, due to an unrequited affection for the woman he shot, is believed to have been responsible for Gould's act. Christensen told police that his wife had complained to him of improper advances made by Gould, and that he had and wife then ordered the boarder to leave the premises at once.

DRAGGED FROM CAR ON WAY TO MOVIES
Mrs. Mary Vickery of Trapelo road, Waverley, described how her husband, George H. Vickery, picked her up bodily and carried her from a street car when she attempted to go to the movies, during the trial of her divorce suit in Middlesex Probate Court.

She charged her husband with cruelty. After dragging her from the street car, she continued, he carried her in to the house and locked her in the room. On several occasions, the wife declared, her husband beat her with a whip. Judge Chamberlain granted the wife a decree nisi and reserved decision on her petition for alimony, custody of two children and the right to use her maiden name.

ARCHDUKE MAY DIE IN BOSTON NEXT TIME!

New York Folk Rejoice Because He Selected Their City for One Burial

New York, April 4.—(New York) had always felt slighted that the Archduke John Salvator of Austria never died here.

The good Archduke had died in Yonkers, New York, last night, after a brief illness, at the age of 61.

He had died in Berlin and Bagdad. By the same token he had died in Kiao, Greenland, and also Chihuahua.

The New York Chamber of Commerce and other civic bodies felt very deeply about the Archduke's failure to die here. Undertakers were very much hurt. Letters of protest were sent to his majesty and press agents, but nothing ever came of the matter.

New York had to go through life realizing that the Archduke John

CHARGE GIRLS RUN RUM IN AUTOS

Louisville, Ky., April 4.—Charges of F. O. Miller, federal prohibition agent for Kentucky and Tennessee, that Louisville high school girls were "cutting" classes and using their automobiles in illicit transportation of liquor for bootleggers, brought a quick denial from S. B. Trinsley, principal.

Mr. Trinsley called on Miller to furnish proof in fact in the girls and to Louisville board of education.

Salvator of Austria had never died here.

And then, like the rest follow he—or was—the Archduke did the right thing. He died here Monday out of the sheer goodness of his heart, unheralded, unasked. He died in the person of Dr. John O'Connell. Any number of people came forward to identify the Archduke. As he passed on there was a hint that he died in Boston next time.

A full feature came into the case in New York when Miss Grace E. Walsfield, a new ward of the Archduke's, consequently unfamiliar with his nobility's death pranks, took his latest death to heart and committed suicide.

That was just on the boards and has caused general regret among the Archduke's friends, who felt this he should have been applied of the Archduke's mortal fate and that he never died permanently.

100-YEAR-OLD MINISTER IS STILL ACTIVE

Rev. Edward Best Attends Lynn Conference and Pronounces Benediction

The Rev. Edward Best, retired minister of Malden, who will celebrate his 100th birthday in 20 years, pronounced that benediction at the conclusion of the conference of the anniversary of the New England Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church in Lynn.

Mr. Best, who retired some years ago, was in the active ministry of the church 74 years. During this time it is believed he delivered more than 10,000 sermons. He filled twenty-one vacancies in New England, his last charge being in the London section of Malden.

Despite his advanced years, Mr. Best enjoys good health and one of his principal diversions is working among the plants and flowers in his garden at his home.

The Pittsburgh school is sent by disavowal and there is extreme bitterness among several of the players, consequently it is only natural that their team play should suffer on the field. Already the management is mapping out next season's campaign. Several members of the squad will be in camp for a week or two before the season starts.

Captain Lloyd Conacher and Coach Dick Carroll deny that the third game in Boston was dumped, but the coach is perfectly willing to admit that he was afraid to risk his best players in that third encounter. Speaking about that murky discussed conflict today, Carroll said: "We were taken by surprise at the stern opposition that the B. A. A. gave us in Boston. The boys went to Boston feeling pretty cocky and you may imagine their surprise when they were lucky to take those first two games, each by a one-goal margin."

DEFEAT LAST SATURDAY IS EXPLAINED
"They had been through a grueling season and they were not prepared for such a fight. I have a reputation to uphold here. Pittsburgh fans are extremely partisan and must win to keep in their own grace. I could not afford to press, using a liking out here with the home supporters looking on, consequently when the B. A. A. built up that lead in the second period, I decided that it would be best for the conference our strength for our home series."

METIGUE MAY FIGHT STRIBLING AGAIN
Newark, April 4.—The Newark club will make another effort to stage a bout between Mike Metigue and Young Stribling. Stribling, who is expected to arrive in the city on Friday, Metigue's manager, in his characteristic way, stated that he would consider the proposal after Metigue has a chance to rest.

Shoe Workers! Act Now for Safety of Your Homes!

Write or Wire President Coolidge and Every Member of Congress to Stop the Convict Shoe Factories.

The American calls upon every person whose livelihood in Massachusetts is dependent upon the shoe industry to start a bombardment of Congress.

Tucked away in the Deficiency Bill, so-called, passed by Congress and signed by the President, was a section which deals the industry of New England, particularly Massachusetts, a staggering blow. This section provides for an appropriation to turn the convict labor of the Federal penitentiary at Fort Leavenworth into the manufacture of shoes for the army, the navy and the Indian stores.

Because of this measure, the loss to the State of Massachusetts alone will be $5,000,000 a year, in the opinion of Representative William H. McCarthy of Rockland.

It seems like spitting on the flag to have our sailors and our soldiers marching in convict made shoes.

But perhaps Congress does not think of that.

Congress has, in the past, pursued a policy of fostering and protecting home industries. This new move launches the government against her own industries and against her own tax payers.

The American suggests that every person interested in the industry strike back at once.

Bury the busy bees of Congress under an avalanche of letters and protests. Have this law changed. Individual letters and individual telegrams will have more weight than a ponderous single petition which is never read.

Write and telegraph our President. He knows how vital this proposition is to the home State. Tomorrow's American hopes to be able to tell you just what is behind this blow at New England industries. Our staff men in Washington are investigating.

File Your Protest

The New England Telephone & Telegraph Co. is seeking to increase its rates for certain types of service. New tariffs have been filed with the State Department of Public Utilities, which body announces that no public hearing will be held unless protests from the public are received.

These protests should be forthcoming. A hearing should be held. The people pay the bills and if the new telephone tariff schedule is allowed, the people will pay the increased rates. Yet, strange to say, not one protest has been received. When it is too late they will be heard.

File your protest now. Demand that a public hearing be held. Even if the declared need of the telephone company for increased revenue were the most obvious thing in the world—which it is not—a boost in rates should not be allowed without the voice of the people being heard.

Bill to Develop U. S. Water Power

Desirable Legislation Started by Senator Norris

One of the most desirable pieces of legislation now claiming the attention of the country is the proposed bill of Senator Norris of Nebraska, providing for a Federal Public Service Commission to develop the waterpower resources of the country and sell electricity to the people AT COST.

The bill already has strong support. It was prepared co-operatively by Senators Norris, Dill, Frasier, Howell and La Follette, and Congressmen Kellar, Swing, Welford, Kvale, La Guardia, Sinclair and others.

The measure is based upon the truth that real conservation does not consist in merely withdrawing from use the people's resources, like coal, oil and waterpower. The people have the right to the intelligent use of these resources. Senator Norris proposes to use the waterpowers intelligently.

If resources are simply withdrawn from use and locked away, as Roosevelt withdrew the oil lands of the West, there comes a revulsion of popular feeling, and we have such a crime as the General Leasing Act of February 25, 1920, under which John Barton Payne and Albert B. Fall indulged in an orgy of giving away to private interests the nation's oil lands, too long withheld from use.

Senator Norris proposes that the waterpowers shall be put to work, not given away to private interests for nothing, but developed into electricity sold to the public without profit.

Senator Norris and his level-headed associates in Washington have been watching the work of the Hydro-Electric Commission up in the province of Ontario, popularly called "Hydro." Hydro takes the waterpower of Niagara Falls, turns it into electricity, and distributes it to municipal electric lighting plants throughout Ontario so cheaply that they sell to consumers at one-third the price collected by our corporations from up-State New York consumers for current created by these same Niagara Falls.

Senator Norris finds another very interesting thing. He finds that, in spite of these low charges upon the public, Hydro is able to pay expenses, and accumulate a fund with which it is gradually paying off the bonds issued for building its plants and transmission lines.

Did you ever hear of a private corporation thus reducing the amount of outstanding bonds on which interest has to be paid by charges levied on the public?

Well, the Norris bill gives the Federal Public Service Commission a revolving fund of five hundred million dollars. This will construct plants worthy many times five hundred million dollars. Users of the commission's electric current will pay a sum not only sufficient to cover the commission's operating cost, but also to repay the commission's treasury for its outlay on plants and transmission lines. These repaid funds will then be available for further waterpower development.

Under the bill the commission is to be given Muscle Shoals for development, and also to be constructed the Boulder Dam in the canyon of Colorado, designed to protect from flood the people of the Imperial Valley and supply six million horsepower for the use of the people in western States.

Any city, State or county can ask this Federal Public Service Commission to construct for it a waterpower development and sell the current AT COST.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

"AND so they were married and lived happily ever after." In some such careless way did the old love stories end. No so in 1924. No such sloppy work for me. This is the day of the Psychological Test. If Romeo's test matches Juliet's they may be married. If not, he must seek another bride. That's the latest edict of Those Who Know. And here you've lived twenty-three years with John Henry and never even knew he has a psychology to test!

Joking? No, I'm not joking. Didn't you read about it the other day? The papers were full of it. The First Psychological Marriage has just come to pass. Each one of the young people underwent a mental examination before marriage. This examination not only determined their sanity, but is also expected to determine their compatibility. For instance, if the young lady revealed an appreciation for cubist art in her psycho, the young man was searched for similar symptoms. If the young man had a submerged urge for Socialism the young lady had to be at least one-half of one per cent. Bolshevik in order to qualify as his mate, or all bets were off. The record does not reveal whether they were permitted to differ on brands of motor cars, golf stockings, breakfast food and tooth paste, but doubtless the tests covered all such contingencies. Then, having decided that their minds fitted like the separate bits of a Japanese puzzle, they were married. And maybe they'll live happily ever after. Or maybe they won't.

ARISES FROM A DETERMINATION TO AGREE WHETHER YOUR TASTES AND ATTRIBUTES MATCH OR NOT.

If you're going to hang around waiting for happiness until the other fellow thinks as you do you're off to a bad start. If you're looking for a divorce before you buy the wedding ring. For you may both like grand opera, etchings, Chinese rugs, horn spurs, artichokes, Shaw and a Protestant religion and still make a Hades of your married life. On the other hand, you may be as far apart as the poles in your intellectual interests and yet create a Paradise. It all depends on your individual selfishness or unselfishness.

If you're determined to have your own way and despise all other ways, you can be just as venomous over the question of etchings as the man who reads Browning will start just as nastily a scrap as the man who chews tobacco, and the lady from the conservatory will swing quite as mean an adjective as the lady from the cannery. But if understanding, humor and tolerance enter into your love, a difference in surface gesture will not disturb you. Beneath your wife's inexplicable infatuation with clothes and Ma-Jong, or your husband's tiresome absorption in business, you will see the Questing Soul—that Soul which hungers as you hunger, rejoices as you rejoice—and is cast down with your own dejection. THERE'S A MIGHTY DIFFERENCE IN SURFACE, BUT VERY LITTLE DIFFERENCE IN SOULS.

The only true and enduring compatibility comes from the mating of souls, not of surfaces. It comes from a desire to serve each other, not a mere desire to enjoy each other. If psychological tests strike deeply enough to determine that they will do great good. But unless they do, they're merely another form of light, indoor sport.

DR. FRANK CRANE ON PATIENCE AS A VIRTUE

By DR. FRANK CRANE

PATIENCE, like peace, has got a bad name.

It is taken merely to be a variety of weakness. Patient people, we are prone to think, are those who have not spunk enough or strength enough to rebel or protest.

Quite the contrary is the truth. Patience is decidedly an aggressive virtue. Patience is an evidence of strength and not of weakness.

Your own observation will prove that to you. For are not the most impatient people you know, the querulous, complaining and protesting people, really the weak people?

The strong man is not so much the man who can fight as he is the man who can endure.

A good fight is more or less of a spasm. Firm endurance means an abiding supply of strength.

Soldiers have said that the most trying hour is not the hour of attack, but the hour of enforced waiting.

Patience implies intelligence. It is characteristically a human quality. Rats will fight; also dogs and wild beasts. But the animals who seem to exhibit patience are mostly spiritless creatures. When we come to human beings, however, it is the wisest who are "slow to anger." It is the more ignorant and those who have the weakest moral inhibitions who are the most contentious.

Patience implies faith. It is a sort of confidence in one's self and in all the forces of the universe.

Patience implies vision for, as a rule, it is only those to whom the present moment is supreme, only those who neither see nor care for consequences, who are impatient.

There is a time to fight, a time to rebel, to cry out and to strike. But it is always the patient man who is the best fighter. And when the patient man cries out he is listened to more than the man who is crying all the time.

When the patient man makes up his mind to fight he is a much more dangerous enemy than one who fights at every provocation.

Patience is the virtue of giants. Impatience is the vice of petty souls. It is common enough to find those who are ready and willing to do something, even something desperate, venturesome and dangerous; but the great discoveries of science, the great achievements of statesmanship, the great exploits in the realm of business and the successful prosecution of great military campaigns have been made, not by the force of nervous crises, not by the impetuous and desperate, but by those who have learned the art of patience and have known how "to labor and to wait."

GARRETT P. SERVISS ON WHAT SUN DID

By Garrett P. Serviss

Famous Astronomer and Writer on Scientific Topics of Popular Interest

"They say the sun entered Aries and Spring commenced on March 20. I don't see much of what I call Spring yet, but I will take the astronomer's word for it, believing that he meant well, if you will just tell me what the sun really did to make Spring commence and what is 'entering Aries.'"

Usually it takes a good optimist to believe that Spring commenced when the sun entered Aries. In "getting across" the astronomer has to make a strong appeal to the layman's imagination. Suppose we try what can be done with the aid of the celestial animals of the Zodiac.

The ancients saw that the sun passed every year round the earth following an apparently fixed path across the stars, and they divided this path, which we call the Ecliptic, into twelve equal parts as the year is divided into twelve months.

Then, because their imaginations held a great number of human and animal figures among the stars, scattered along the track of the sun, they gathered these into constellations—the famous "Twelve Constellations of the Zodiac"—giving each a name. But each constellation was also a "Sign," and the zodiac was divided into twelve signs.

Our picture shows that after entering the Sign Aries, or the Constellation Pegasus, the sun comes to the "Twin Stars," or the northern star, and that about a month later, when the sun enters the Sign Taurus and the Constellation Aries, the Ram, he will continue to move in the zodiac until he enters the Sign Libra and the Constellation Virgo, the 21st of June, which will be the beginning of the Astronomical Summer, or the Summer Solstice.

ONCE-OVERS

GIVE YOUR HONEST OPINION WHEN ASKED

Do not try to make such a good fellow of yourself that you always agree with everyone rather than to stand for an opinion, even if it involves a heated argument.

Have some individuality and stand by it; not to the point where you feel to carry out orders of your superior—that would not do, of course—but you need not be afraid to let your ideas be heard if you like.

Be honest with him and with yourself, even if it is not in line with what you know he believes.

Also, do not enter half-heartedly into any duty your superior asks you to do because you may not favor the way he wants a thing done. Remember you are hired to do as your employer wishes.

Remember you are an employer who is an employer, and you are said: "I can tell you people when I think you are going wrong and can check you up, but I have none to check me and I wish I had." This man would have welcomed suggestions from his men, from those who had really good and practical suggestions to make. Many bosses and employers are in this sort, especially the successful ones.

Do not be afraid to give your honest opinion when you are asked.
